Field excursions are made to study objects in their natural environment, and experimental investigations are conducted by the students in the classroom. GEOGRAPHY AND GEOLOGY GEOGRAPHY. PHYSICAL GEOGRAPHY. The first step in physical geography is to master the earth as a sphere--to get the earth-sphere into consciousness as an object of study. The second step is the mastery of the lithosphere. This must be seen as a whole and in its relations to the other spheres, and then it must be reviewed in its relations to the earth as the home of man. The third step is the consideration of the hydrosphere. The waters of the earth must be studied as things per se; then they must be viewed in relation to the other graphic spheres, and finally in their relation to the central theme in geography. The fourth step is the atmosphere. The method of dealing with this sphere is the same as with the preceding spheres. The fifth step is the biosphere. In geography, life is not studied biologically, but rather the phase of life which enters into and helps to explain the theme in geography, the earth as the home of man....
